

SIMS Claims Successfully Implemented at Olympus Insurance

Intuitive Cloud-hosted Claims System Implemented in Accelerated Timeframe

Hartford, CT, May 30, 2017 – Insurity, a leading provider of core insurance processing and data integration and analytics solutions, today announced that Olympus Insurance Company (Olympus), a Florida homeowners insurance company, successfully implemented SIMS Claims[™] as part of its plan to bring claims in-house. The system is being hosted on Insurity’s reliable, secure and high-performing SIMS Cloud environment.

As a truly digital claims system, SIMS Claims is fast, flexible and functional. Leading insurance companies, insurance pools, self-insured employers, and TPAs have relied on SIMS Claims to manage claims, control costs and boost productivity. With its fresh user interface, clients can leverage the power and robust features of SIMS, while benefiting from an intuitive and efficient user experience. Key capabilities include workflow automation, business intelligence and digital features that encompass apps, web portals, mobile capabilities and mapping.

Jeffrey Scott, CEO of Olympus, commented on the software project, “When we first started to shop for a new claims system, we found in SIMS Claims an intuitive interface that would meet our claims management needs, and it’s also flexible enough that we’ll be able to support our unique processes and continually incorporate powerful capabilities with the platform. From the start, we experienced a very positive interaction with the management team of SIMS Claims, Insurity. With their expertise in the claims space, we felt confident in their system and in their team’s ability to meet our aggressive timeframe for implementation within six months.”

Jose Tribuzio, Senior Vice President and General Manager of the SIMS Claims product line at Insurity, commented, “We were excited about this opportunity to work with Olympus; the company has a reputation as a trusted provider of homeowners insurance in Florida and for providing exemplary service to customers. Olympus wanted to accelerate implementation, and cloud-hosting helped expedite delivery of the solution. With SIMS Claims now in place, Olympus has a sophisticated digital platform to support its unique workflow. They also have access to powerful business intelligence and dynamic reporting capabilities to gain deeper insights into their business.”

Scott added, “We recently went live with SIMS Claims, but we have a significant road map ahead to continue to integrate our core philosophies around service. We can tell SIMS Claims will provide a strong foundation from which to accomplish our objectives to meet and respond to customer needs, and to deliver our expertise and professionalism in claims-handling.”
